

Student International Ambassador Application 2022

Return your completed application by email to Gracie Pekarcik, gpekarci@utk.edu

The Ambassador Application DEADLINE is 5:00pm, Friday, Feb 10th, 2023

Smith Center for International Sustainable Agriculture (Smith Center) Student International Ambassadors (SIAs) are a select group of individuals working to internationalize undergraduate education at the University of Tennessee Institute of Agriculture (UTIA). This student-directed group integrates international experiences in and out of UTK classrooms, as well as promotes study abroad opportunities and the International Agriculture and Natural Resources (IANR) Minor by sharing international experiences with faculty, peers, alumni, and the public. SIAs also participate in leadership and service activities, network with international organizations, and develop leadership and other career skills.

SIAs represent the Smith Center at both on and off campus events such as the Herbert Student Career Fair, and UTK Study Abroad Fairs. They help organize, participate in, and administer the annual UTIA International Showcase and the Smith Center photo contest. Independently and with the advisors (Gracie Pekarcik and Adam Willcox), they will present in classes their international experiences and recruit for the IANR Minor and Herbert study abroad programs. SIAs also mentor individuals and small groups of students in the IANR Minor and those preparing to study abroad. SIAs will also assist with “walk in” sessions in the Smith Center office 101 McCord Hall.

SIAs meet as needed (usually bi-weekly). The Smith Center will provide light refreshments and SIAs are responsible to organize activities during the meetings with assistance from the advisors. The SIAs and advisors will arrange and participate in one annual retreat per year. SIAs will also receive a Smith Center t-shirt for events. Graduating SIAs will have access to loaned Smith Center stoles for their graduation regalia.

Applicants must have agriculture or natural resources international experiences independently or as part of a study abroad program. They are also expected to enroll in and complete the IANR Minor. Applicants must have successfully completed one semester of coursework with at least a 3.0 GPA at the time of application. Applicants must be full-time, degree-seeking undergraduate students. SIAs serve for at least one year, however, there is no limit on the number of years they can serve. Sitting ambassadors should discuss with the advisors if they would like to continue to serve for additional years.

SIAs are expected to wear their Smith Center shirt when conducting Ambassador duties, unless otherwise specified. Advisors reserve the right to release SIAs from the program if not performing as expected.

The SIA group is designed to be a service organization for students who desire to internationalize the UTIA student experience. The Institute rewards Ambassadors for their hard work and service in the following ways:

- Shirts to represent Smith Center at events
- Preference on the annual Smith Center study abroad scholarship application
- Refreshments at bi-monthly meetings
- Leadership, networking, and other career skills needed for an international agriculture and natural resources career
- Preference on the Peace Corps Prep application
